

In conjunction with supervising faculty, a student completing ETST 499 - Independent Study will be able to:

1. develop a course of research on a topic of special interest, which builds on existing knowledge and skills in Ethnic Studies.
2. apply skills in qualitative methods of data collection.
3. formulate and present a cohesive argument demonstrating knowledge of research techniques and documentation, organization, and the mechanics of writing.
4. analyze information critically using Ethnic Studies' theories and concepts in real world applications.
