CSUSM to Launch Advanced Certificate in Educational Technology

What: CSUSM to launch Advanced Certificate in Educational Technology

Where: California State University San Marcos, Extended Learning

When: Courses being offered Spring 2013

Why: In response to a regional need for individuals who are trained in the field of education technology, the Advanced Certificate in Education Technology equips teachers seeking to incorporate the use of new technologies in their classroom.

CSUSM Extended Learning and the School of Education have partnered to offer this new fully online program! This certificate program provides K-12 educators with experience, knowledge of resources, and models for effective implementation of emerging technologies that support teaching and learning in online or face-to-face settings. The two 3-unit courses for the certificate are offered online and the one unit courses are offered in hybrid or online format. This program explores the use of Web-based tools, applications and strategies for managing digital learning and prepare teachers to be leaders in the innovative educational design.

For more information about the Advanced Certificate in Educational Technology, please contact 760-750-4020 or el@csusm.edu.
