CSUSM ACADEMIC LECTURES

Various locations around CSUSM

Sit in on a college lecture from professors in Marketing, Liberal Studies, Sociology, Physics, and Chemistry. Each lecture lasts approximately 30 minutes followed by Q&A.

Professor	Department	9:00	10:00	Room	Course Description
Stephen Tsui, Ph.D.	Physics		•	SCI2 245	PHYS 205- Atmosphere in a Cup Have you ever wondered how much farther apart gas molecules are from liquid molecules? Although we cannot measure this with the naked eye, there is a simple experiment that can be done with liquid nitrogen to give us a good idea of what happens when liquid phase changes into a gas.
Jacqueline A. Trischman, Ph.D.	Chemistry & Biochemistry	•	•	SBSB 1101	CHEM 316- Chocolate: A Chemical Investigation Whether you are a chemistry novice or an AP Chem student, you will learn something about chocolate and why it is such a difficult treat to make. You may even get to test out some samples that use chemistry to solve their manufacturing problems in different ways.
Matthew Atherton, Ph.D.	Sociology	•	•	SBSB 1102	SOC 325- Who Could Prevent More Crime, Batman or Bruce Wayne? This lecture will give a brief introduction to theories of criminology and focus on traditional crime control policy and how we could rethink it.
Laura Makey	Liberal Studies	•		SBSB 1108	GBST 100- Introduction to Global Studies Global Studies is one of the fastest growing majors on campus. Come learn about current events in a team-based course environment.
Laura Makey	Liberal Studies		•	SBSB 1108	GEOG 202- World Regional Geography with GIS Geographic Information Systems (GIS) provide the infrastructure for modern technology- everything from basic GPS to advanced applications like Google Earth. Come learn world geography using GIS technology.
Vassilis Dalakas, Ph.D.	Marketing	•	•	SBSB 1103	MKTG 445- Consumer Behavior This lecture will examine a consumer's perception of marketing messages and how that is affected by product placement.
