Not only has ART=OPPORTUNITY been a significant advocacy partner throughout the state, their work on the evidence, the research for arts education, has been a cornerstone in telling the story of education to decision makers.

It’s about Social Justice

This past year I’ve been heartened by the humanity the arts bring to the community. Amid such a polarized time in our country, we’ve witnessed so many young people creatively express and encourage social justice through their art activities. The youth of AAY! engaged peers in issues of safety at their summit; students at CSUSM worked toward inclusion, access, and diversity in their presentations; and teachers at the summer bootcamp focused keenly on empathy. The arts are uniquely poised as reflections of our times and a forum to give rise to change. From youth to college students to teachers and artists, the collective work of ART=OPPORTUNITY throughout this year has highlighted the themes of social justice, safety, inclusion, creativity, and empathy.

Our major accomplishments outlined in this report include another successful set of events, including the AAY! Summit, the Literacy Residency, and Bootcamp. We have stepped up our presence at fairs, such as Super STEM (we make it STEAM) and MEGA ARTS. We have also amped up our dissemination by presenting at multiple conferences and writing numerous papers.

As we look forward in 2020, we have already been asked to present at national conferences, and we have several publications in process. Our open source WHY ART? cards are being used in more and more settings. Bottom line, our mission is clear: we believe all students deserve the best education possible in which they are set up for a successful pathway toward college and careers. ART=OPPORTUNITY.
SPREADING THE MESSAGE

In Year 3 we made a splash on the CSUSM campus with a new banner highlighting our themes of Social Justice, Empathy and Career Readiness. New stickers emblazoned with the ART=OPPORTUNITY message were distributed at fairs and events, and our WHY ART? coffee sleeves continue to be a hit with students.

“...I have always been involved in the arts and they have benefited me in so many ways as I have gone through my education and pursued careers. I consider it a serious social justice issue that so many students do not have equal access to the arts. Which is why ART-OPPORTUNITY is so important to me - it is a great organization, spreading the message that the arts are not fluff! I’m so thankful that I have had the chance to get involved on and off campus, sharing how art impacts lives.”

— Amy Brunolli, Art Advocate, CSUSM Student, and This Year’s Cover Model

TURNING STEM INTO STEAM!

ART-OPPORTUNITY added an “A” for ART to this year’s Cal State San Marcos Super STEM Saturday festival celebrating Science, Technology, Engineering and Math. More than 15,000 attendees visited over 100 booths at the annual event. Our booth featured a hands-on salt and watercolor activity and a crayon leaf-rubbing diagram. Over 500 ART-OPPORTUNITY stickers were handed out, thousands of proud kids went home with their artwork, and everyone discovered that STEM is BETTER when the ARTS are incorporated!
FUNDING AND GRANTS

ART=OPPORTUNITY received its initial investment and ongoing major funding from the Stuart Foundation. In addition, we receive support for our 3-day Bootcamp and literacy residencies for in-service and preservice teachers from Panta Rhea. We also partner with Clare Rose Foundation to support the leaders and organizations behind our AAAY! Summit: Arts Amplifying Youth.

We are proud to have been selected to receive two grants from the California Arts Council.

Youth Arts Action (YAA)
With support from the California Arts Council, we will expand the relationship with the SOULcial Workers by supporting the eight-week after-school session of Camp AART (Attitudes, Awareness, and Relationships Training). SOULcial Workers will also play a leadership role at the third annual AAAY! Summit: Arts Amplifying Youth led by youth for youth in April 2020.

Research in the Arts (RIA)
With support from the California Arts Council, we will conduct two studies to expand on the research component of the Art=Opportunity Public Awareness project: first, to gauge the parent resonance and response to the program; and second, to conduct a mixed-method analysis of youth mentorship in the arts to better understand how training in arts leadership promotes civic engagement.

We are proud to announce that we have also received a grant from the San Diego County Board of Supervisors Community Enhancement Program in support of Camp AART.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

We continue to ensure the strength of the field, engaging in leadership training, including providing professional development opportunities for education and arts administrators, teachers, arts partners, university partners, teaching artists, art teachers and parents.

“It was empowering to learn how music, theater, and art are tools that can integrate with literacy in any subject to better engage my students.”

- Bootcamp Participant

June 2019: Our Arts and Literacy Maker Space 3-Day Bootcamp was attended by more than 50 preservice and in-service educators who participated in sessions around literacy, empathy, arts integration and lesson plan curriculum.
LITERACY RESIDENCY

February 2019: In conjunction with the San Marcos Writing Project (SMWP), ART=OPPORTUNITY welcomed children’s book author Sara Pennypacker and illustrator Marla Frazee for a full-day workshop discussing the crosses of literacy and arts. The duo created the popular Clementine and Waylon! book series. The day was designed to engage K-12 educators, promote the value arts integration has for student learning, and empower educators to integrate the arts into their daily classroom instruction.

SHARING ART AROUND CAMPUS

ART=OPPORTUNITY was invited to showcase elements of our campaign, including our WHY ART? cards and coffee sleeves as part of the Juncture art show in the CSUSM Arts Gallery & Performance Hall. This opportunity inspired us to add a Featured Art page to our own website.

Photography from Jake Northington along with The Mountain Shadows: Painting Our World Radiantly (M:POWR) mural project can be found on the Featured Art page of our website at csusm.edu/artopp. More exciting art to come!
We are again very proud of our San Diego youth (teen) leaders who organized, planned and implemented the 2019 AAY! Summit: Arts Amplifying Youth.

In April 2019, AAY! Arts Amplifying Youth hosted its second annual youth summit, and this year things got personal. Coming together in year two was, in a word, exciting. Many young artists returned still riding the excitement from our inaugural summit in 2018, while other new faces joined the group, bringing with them the excitement of fresh perspectives, creativity and curiosity. They jumped in right away and began connecting and collaborating — sharing experiences and generating ideas they were passionate about. ‘Safety’ quickly emerged as the theme.

The AAY! leaders chose to facilitate conversations around the issue of safety and the ways that having limited access to safe spaces directly affect youth. Understanding how textured a topic like safety can be, they spent over five months researching the different ways their generation defines this issue as well as exploring the various experiences that have helped to define it for themselves. The leaders wanted to create a more intimate experience in 2019. They examined the different challenges they’ve encountered when it came to feeling safe in their own lives, searching for opportunities to personally connect with this year’s summit participants in a meaningful way. As they challenged each other to discover what it truly takes to create safe spaces for young people, they landed upon the title of this year’s event, “Safety: This Is Personal.”

The leaders worked to create a total of six workshops covering a range of topics where they saw safety impacting youth the most, including healthy relationships with self and others, mental and emotional safety, and safety in schools and on social media. They created performances and designed educational activities using art forms like dance, visual art and poetry to engage their peers in a deeper understanding of how the arts could be used to help realize, reclaim and reimagine safety for themselves.

AAY! Summit: Arts Amplifying Youth is created by youth, for youth. Over a hundred students from different schools across San Diego were invited to this year’s summit. To create a more socially inclusive space, the leaders brought in a dj and turned the seating area into a dance floor with a stage. An open mic and an expressive arts room gave participants a safe space to just hang out and make art. Our leaders set an intention to not just create an event where these themes were being authentically spoken about, but to also create an experience that would demonstrate the types of safe environments they wanted to inspire their peers to co-create in their own communities.

It was an honor to serve a team of such powerfully beautiful souls. As an adult partner in the room, it was incredible to watch it all unfold. It is truly a gift to witness young people strengthening their voices, building authentic connections and stepping up to take charge of the changes they want to see. They are developing into these amazing self-actualized leaders who truly show up! In turn, they are making it safe for their peers to do the same.

Save the Date: AAY! Summit is already in the works for May 9, 2020

We are again very proud of our San Diego youth (teen) leaders who organized, planned and implemented the 2019 AAY! Summit: Arts Amplifying Youth.
The AAY! leaders expanded their horizons and continued their work throughout the year.

August 2019: CSSSA (California State Summer School for the Arts) AAY! leaders shared their thoughts on arts advocacy as guest presenters. The California State Summer School for the Arts is a rigorous, preprofessional, month-long training program in the visual and performing arts, creative writing, animation and film for talented artists of high school age. The goal of CSSSA is to provide a supportive environment in which students acquire experience and training that extends beyond the practice and improvement of aesthetics and technique.

October 2019: MEGA ARTS Conference Youth Workshop Developed in partnership with the county’s arts education organizations and Balboa Park arts and culture institutions, the Arts Empower MEGA ARTS Conference is a forum that unites teachers of all arts disciplines, elementary multiple-subject teachers, teaching artists, school administrators, and arts organization members. AAY! leaders led a workshop concerning arts and social justice in which they provided participants with hands-on experiences and activities.

October 2019: National Guild for Community Arts Education conference in Austin, Texas The National Guild for Community Arts Education is an organization that supports the creation and advancement of arts institutions and government agencies that ensure community-wide access to the arts. Their annual conference brought together leaders and educators from various backgrounds to share knowledge, build relationships and advance a common vision. The AAY!: Arts Amplifying Youth leaders performed, presented and attended workshops.

OUTREACH AND PARTNERSHIPS

ART=OPPORTUNITY joined forces with teachers, school administrators and philanthropic and business partners to form CREATE 78, a collaboration to enhance art education in the schools and communities that neighbor Cal State San Marcos. Our own research indicates participation in arts programs, including visual, music, dance and theater, improves student performance and attendance. Further, art instruction instills the creativity and teamwork 21st-century careers demand. According to data from Create California, just 39 percent of the state’s middle and high school students participate in arts education. The schools along the route 78 corridor report a similar rate. Compare that to Ohio, where 73 percent of students study art or music, and it’s clear that famously forward-thinking California is falling behind. This has become a social justice issue that needs to be addressed. Envisioned as a region-wide network for arts in school, CREATE 78 was established to increase access to the arts for all students across the 78 corridor. Create 78 is a good step in the right direction.

"We have witnessed the power of ART=OPPORTUNITY as we engage with educators and stakeholders throughout the state focused on key research that underscores the importance of arts learning for our diverse students."

– Sarah Anderberg, Director, CCSESA Arts Initiative

Crayola’s CreatED Professional Learning Team collaborated with our team to develop their own branded WHY ART? card packs in both English and Spanish to use as an extension of their training. Each card features a unique QR code that links directly to the specific research data on the ART=OPPORTUNITY website. CreatED offers teachers the opportunity to learn and share the techniques of creative thinking and leadership to boost achievement and accelerate transformation.
WHY ART? Spreads Across America!

We continue to receive requests for our research-based WHY ART? card packs from arts organizations and schools from across the country. This year we asked an important question: "How you are using the cards?"

The Missouri Alliance for Arts Education took advantage of our offer to prepare art files with their logo. With the generous resources of a local printer, they have distributed hundreds of customized WHY ART? card packs in their community.

The posters are hung in the hallways of our school. I especially appreciate having these materials in both English and Spanish, as we have a 60 percent Spanish-speaking population.

We posted them on our website to share the value of art education with our parents.

I use the research from the cards to write grants.

We use the cards with our parent English Language Learners. It always sparks a lively conversation about how art has impacted their lives.

I plan to promote the importance of the 2020 Census using the cards.

As a teaching artist, I use these cards in my professional learning workshops.

These are some of the best advocacy tools I have seen. The visuals combined with the relevant research points make the message approachable and memorable.

I hand them out at Parent-Teacher Conferences.

The cards help us promote our community arts non-profit.

The cards are being used to inform the Academic and Administrative Program Review currently underway at Oberlin College.

We posted the cards in a legal action presentation.

We included the cards in a legal action presentation.

A valuable resource for advocating with our school board.

We use the cards with our parent English Language Learners. It always sparks a lively conversation about how art has impacted their lives.

I use the research from the cards to write grants.

ART=OPPORTUNITY PROJECT AND PARTNERS

Thanks to generous funding from the Stuart Foundation, California State University San Marcos (CSUSM) launched a San Diego County-wide campaign focused on providing access for all children to a better education by improving literacy in and through the arts. ART=OPPORTUNITY is now also supported with funding from the Panta Rhea Foundation and CSUSM.

ART=OPPORTUNITY is a research-based collective impact model with its home base at California State University San Marcos, engaging faculty, students and staff in multiple colleges. Through ever-building partnerships, including the County Office of Education, school districts, arts non-profits and the community, we seek to ensure that each and every child has the opportunities that arts bring to successful careers and lives. Our work is also used statewide through organizations such as CREATE CA, California Alliance for Arts Education, and the California Arts Council.
