A Note From The Dean ...

The rabbi's d'var Torah touched me having just spent time with students and staff volunteering at Community Roots Farm, Oceanside's BIPOC and womxn-led nonprofit urban farm, for CSUSM's 10th annual César Chávez Day of Service. I worked alongside Julianna, a senior who had volunteered prior to COVID, and Kaya, who moved to campus this year to create a community and sense of belonging for herself that she had missed as a commuter student. I felt privileged to be with these students, and I had a fantastic time alphabetizing seeds and wielding a sledgehammer. (I was far more successful with the first task than the second!)

Time, Talent, and Treasure. All are valuable avenues for service. I was able to make a difference by giving a few hours of time and a small bit of talent. On Thursday, we all have the opportunity to make a difference

This Shabbat my congregational rabbi (like most rabbis do on shabbat) spoke about the weekly Torah portion. He taught that the biblical teachings on priestly offerings, which can seem very far removed from contemporary life, speak to the power of serving. Sometimes we serve from a place of gratitude or joy; sometimes service comes from our needs whether for basics like food and shelter, or from a deep longing to be part of something greater than ourselves. through our treasure. I hope you'll consider making a small donation for OneCSUSM, a day focused on fundraising for student scholarships. Five hundred eighty-seven $5 donations (one for every person on our email list) would raise $2,935 to support a student on their academic journey. Here is the link to scholarships that specifically support CHABSS students.

Thanks for all you do every day.

César Chávez Day of Service

Some members of the Dean's Office staff participated in last Friday's César Chávez Day of Service. The day is intended to serve to honor the legacy of Chávez, and the contributions of farm workers to our society. Chávez, Dolores Huerta, and Larry Itliong fought for workers' rights among countless farmworkers and allies, and their impacts extend beyond the Latinx community. This year's theme is Service was a Lifetime Commitment.

Psychology Student Overcomes To Capture Live Your Dream Award

Alyssa Nieves (middle above) was recently honored with a Live Your Dream award from Soroptimist International of Poway. The award has allowed her to pursue a bachelor's degree in psychology and minor in art, media and design at CSUSM. Nieves was in foster care as a teen and only 18 years old when she had her son. She said she lacked confidence and had no direction in life. As a young adult she attended school off-and-on at Mesa College, Miramar College and finally transferred to CSUSM. The Live Your Dream award and other scholarships gave her the boost she needed to pursue her goals.

Student Team Among H2O Impact Challenge Winners

A team of CSUSM students was recently honored in multiple categories at the SDSU Chinyeh Hostler Social Venture: H20 Impact Challenge. CSUSM's winning team included art, media, and design student Bella Bowman (left above), biotechnology master's student Kanav Aggarwal and marketing student Ashley Gamez. The event is a pitch competition based on identifying a significant problem related to the impact of water on the region. Competitors then present an innovative solution to the problem.

Theater Artist, Department Chair Aims To Expand the Latinx Narrative

Theatre Arts department chair Maria Patrice Amon was recently featured as the cover story in the San Diego Union-Tribune's spring 2024 arts preview. The article written by Pam Kragen tells the origin of how Amon got inspired to pursue her version of storytelling through theatre. She recently directed "Pásale Pásale" on campus. The show moves to the La Jolla Playhouse this week.
