

ARIEL PLAZA

“I believe Ariel displays civility through her inclusive attitude. Anytime she is around she makes an effort to make sure everyone is enjoying themselves and feeling apart of the group. The way she thinks is always about other people before herself. She is also incredibly humble and wouldn't admit any of this. Ariel is on exec for Alpha Xi Delta but is always reaching out to other Greeks and non Greeks alike. Her heart is bigger than I have ever seen in a person and she is more than qualified to be recognized for her civility”.

EMILY MILLER

“Emily is an amazing example of someone who emulates the true heart of Civility. She always takes the time out her busy schedule to make sure others are feeling safe and secure in their academics and personal life, and she is the perfect face and representation of the Student Life and Leadership office.

Emily is already a huge asset to the Civility campaign, and I feel that she deserves the credit for the hard work she had done for this campaign, as well as the amazing impacts she makes on this campus.”

FAITH ORCINO

“Faith is a hard working student on campus who is an Art major. She does so much to show empathy for everyone she surrounds herself with, practices tolerance, never says anything bad about ANYONE, and is known and loved by many on the campus for her kindness, caring and love. She has done so much within her major and works so hard doing graphic design and working as a staff editor for the Cougar Chronicles Arts and Entertainment section. She is the epitome of Civility in my book”.

JESSE GRAJEDA

“University Village Apartment Resident Advisor, Jesse Grajeda demonstrates support and empathy for CSUSM students and residents through his ongoing environmental awareness. Jesse’s environmental awareness is driven by going green in every aspect, from housing maintenance, to his academic studies, to involvement with the community. Jesse is involved in the following organizations; Resident Advisor Green Living liaison, Environmental Leadership Academy Networking, Ecology Club, and the CSUSM Community Garden. Jesse is not only part of green living clubs and organizations, but he is also taking courses. Courses focusing on Environmental History & the Nature and Society in California in order to further educate himself in supporting the environment. Jesse Grajeda creates waves amongst his residents, faculty, staff and peers where he is able to encourage and educate on the importance of green living on and off campus”.

KEVIN ADSON

“Kevin is a very cheerful young man. I always enjoy his visits to the Cross-Cultural Center because he creates a lively and inclusive environment wherever he is, which shows how caring he is. Additionally, I admire his involvement with the LGBTQA Pride Center, his involvement in Greek life, his academic and work ethic, and how he embraces the meaning of social justice. The first time I met Kevin was at the 2013 Social Justice Summit. There, I was able to connect with him since we both are students of color and our interest to learn more about social justice. To conclude, I highly recommend Mr. Kevin Adson as a Civility champion and I know that by valuing the Civility Campaign's values of care, respect, and empathy, and the acknowledgement of culture and humanity of others, he will definitely be a successful student at Cal State San Marcos. Thank you”.

MARIE PARRISH

“Marie is a Japanese tutor, Vice President of the Lit Writing Club, Language Learning Center front desk anchor, and self-teaching student of multiple Asian language. All of these diverse co-curricular projects she undertakes with cultural respect, and care and empathy for her classmates and the wider world. The archaic definition of civility is "training in the humanities". I find it appropriate that her academic studies fall into that definition, while her general demeanor fits the current definition. She is a real champion of civility!”

PETER VU

“Peter is a shining example of civility. He is polite, kind, caring, empathetic, amenable, attentive, formal, courteous, and pleasant to spend time with. He makes the students he assists feel heard, safe, and informed. He is a consistently honest and reliable colleague whom I can rely on heavily. He makes the campus a better place.”
