MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

Welcome to summer 2014 and our vibrant Osher Lifelong Learning community here at California State University San Marcos! This is a great time to be part of the Osher program as we welcome new participants and programs. If you’re not already a volunteer, participant or contributor, we wholeheartedly encourage you to jump in and join our. One of the aspects of this program that I appreciate is that it is “by the people, for the people.” As a result, we are acquiring some fantastic instructors, incredible classes and fascinating participants. Osher members tell me they often learn as much from conversation with fellow classmates as they do from instruction. Our dedicated volunteers are always looking for new venues, new courses and new experiences that will resonate with our members so if you’ve got ideas, please let us know. Come join us and enrich your life together with a community of learners who are engaged, active and curious. Here’s to the “joy of learning!”

TUESDAY COURSES

The Dalai Lama’s Religion: Buddhism in Exile

As one of the world’s leaders, the Dalai Lama and his company have been living in exile since the Qing government since 1959. Despite these challenges, the Dalai Lama has continued to his career as a lama and a political leader for the plight of Tibetans and promoting peaceful relations between all groups. Why has a man with so much reason to be angry continued to dedicate his life to promoting peace? In this course we will discuss the Dalai Lama’s political and religious history and the difficulties facing the modern Tibetan community.

Flashes in Jewish History

This course describes the oppression suffered by the Jews for hundreds of years. It begins by describing the events when the Greeks and Romans tried unsuccessfully to convert Jewish into their own religions. It then describes the struggle for Jewish independence in Spain, and Sefardim and Ashkenazi, and the states of Jewish communities in Europe, the Holocaust, and the creation of the state of Israel. Students will explore the continued impact of Judaism and community life on modern societies.

Unobridged Theories: The Uncommon Interests and Bizarre Tastes of the Victorian Age Modern Americans often delight in the sentimental and nostalgic for the Victorian Age. Movies and television suggest a Victorian world, and sometimes want to be attitudes to those of modern people. However, a careful examination of the Victorians suggests that they had attitudes and interests that were distinctly different.

In this course we will examine the particular fascination with death, the society of the Victorian era, and what we can learn from the Victorian age.

Fun With Watercolor

Express yourself by creating easy-to-do-watercolor colorings. All levels are welcome. Beginners will get their first lessons in pans and paint while exploring their creative side. Those with some experience, will have an opportunity to develop their characters and make new and take new challenges. Beginners will have a demonstration of the correct way to work with watercolor pens. Students are given a color reference photo and line drawing of the subject to transfer onto watercolor paper.
Each meeting will incorporate Basic Watercolor Techniques and color mixing. Our class mission is to create work that is fun and to teach you to create your own projects. Bring your own paints and brushes.
