Inclusive Sustainability: Supporting Student Success Through a Different Lens

In this one-day workshop, faculty will learn about inclusive sustainability and how to integrate themes and concepts into their courses. Faculty will also learn how inclusive sustainability can support student success by examining our current students and their lived experiences. This will be done in a collaborative environment where faculty will connect across disciplines to build interdisciplinary relationships focused on intentionality and intersectionality.

Presenters: Juliana Goodlaw-Morris, Sustainability Manager and Lecturer, Environmental Studies, and Ariel Stevenson, Director of Programs and Initiatives, Office of Inclusive Excellence and Lecturer, First Year Programs

Faculty will receive $250 for participating in the workshop. Lunch will be provided.

June 10, 2022
9:00am-3:00pm
KEL 2413

Applications are due May 20.