

Latino Student Engagement, Retention and Graduation at Hispanic Serving Institutions

Friday, February 23rd, 2018

8:30am - 2:00pm

USU Ballroom 2300

High Impact Teaching Practices To Promote Student Learning and Engagement Panel - Faculty Panel

This panel discussion will include various high impact teaching practices that can be integrated into any course including team-based learning, service-learning and research, etc. The faculty panel will be comprised of participants from various disciplines at all levels (both upper and lower division).

Attendees are encouraged to bring their syllabi to share and further incorporate such practices into their current courses.

Elements of Effective Mentoring for Latinx Students - Kimberly D'Anna & Leandro Galaz

This interactive workshop will provide will discuss common themes amongst mentoring including communication, mentor-mentee expectations and mentoring philosophies. Participants will share what has proven effective in their own mentoring and participate in mentoring case studies to discuss mentoring challenges and potential solutions.

Cultural Validation Approaches to Teaching - Marisol Clark-Ibáñez

This hands-on session will focus on how faculty can infuse cultural validation theory into any of their courses. Bring your syllabus with you to the session!