

Oral Communication - Presentation Workshop

You have a short time to pitch an idea, either in front of an audience, a camera, or around a boardroom table and everyone is looking at you. The attention of your audience is in short supply. How do you maximize your entire presentation package, from body language, voice projection, and technology tools, to get your message across, persuade, dazzle, and ultimately advance your career? This workshop supplements the slide design module, and focuses on the verbal and nonverbal elements of oral communication. In addition to elements of presentation in an offline world, the workshop will also address ways to improve your online game, through webinars and video conferencing. Webcam and microphone required to participate. The facilitator may share preparatory readings ahead of the workshop.
