They also have the responsibility to know and respect their rights

Reflection:

Do citizens have responsibilities as well as rights? If so, do they have a responsibility to speak up about injustice?

Yes, they definitely do because they have to pay taxes, fees, and insurance. They also have rights as well as responsibilities. Yes they do have a responsibility to speak for injustice to do what's right for them and their country.

Is civil disobedience ever justified? Explain

It can be justified in certain cases in which it actually is unfair for the citizens, then they may do this to prove what is right. Each citizen has their own voice

Do you believe that judges and justices today follow impartiality? Explain

Yes, because after the internment of the Japanese, they realized that it was unfair, and they made a mistake. Now that they know this, they should be smart enough to not be bias, but some people still won't believe that you should be impartial, but most of the time yes they are impartial
