Did you know APA uses first name initials to prevent gender bias in scholarship?
The information used to compile this manual comes from the APA Style Guide (7th edition).

APA

Citing sources requires two forms of citation:

- (1) a brief in-text citation next to any material you have summarized, paraphrased, or quoted
- (2) a corresponding citation with more detail within a list of all your sources on a References page.

An in-text citation appears at the end of the sentences; include author, year, & pages (for direct quotations).

In-Text Citation When Paraphrasing

- One researcher found students do better on research papers when they work with a librarian (Li, 2016).
- In her research, Li (2016) found students do better on research papers when they work with a librarian.

In-Text Citation When Quoting

- According to Li (2016), “consulting a librarian greatly benefits students writing research papers” (p. 103).
- One author states, “consulting a librarian greatly benefits students writing research papers” (Li, 2016, p. 103).

In-Text Citation for Sources with No Author

Give first few words of title in quotation marks and year:

- People who love writing read with a pen in their hand to... (“How Writers Read: A Reflection”, 2015).

In-Text Citation for Sources with 6+ authors

List et al. after first author: (Arias et al., 2017).

- Arias et al. (2017) argues that help-seeking behavior is an indicator of long term success.
